INTRODUCTION.

TO THE DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS JUDD.

THE SURNAME JUDD IN ENGLAND.

SURNAMES to distinguish families were first taken in England by men of rank, and were gradually used by the common people in the 13th century. Lower, in his "Essays on Family Nomenclature," printed in London, in 1844, supposes that surnames did not begin to descend from father to son, among the middling and lower classes, till about A. D., 1300.

Lower believes that the surname Judd came from the christian name Jude, just as many other surnames were formed from christian names, as Peters from Peter, Thomas from Thomas, Philips from Philip, Williams from William, Henry from Henry. It is supposed the change was made in this manner. A person called John the son of Jude, changed his name to John Jude, or Judd, and the latter became his surname. Judson, meaning the son of Judd, is a surname; also Judkin signifying little Judd.

Judaus is the Latin for Jew, and is often found in the old Latin records of England, as Aaron Judaus, meaning, Aaron the Jew. In the "Rotuli Hundredorum," or Rolls of the Hundreds, made by Commissioners about 1274 and 1275, the word Judeus appears many times, as Leo Judeus, Benedictus Judeus, Salomon Judeus. It may be that Judeus here is sometimes used as a surname. In these Rolls, many surnames are found similar to those of the present day.

There are certainly two Judds in the Rolls of the Hundreds about 1275, viz., Henry Judde of the county of Kent, and John Judde of Oxfordshire.

The old English poet Gower, born in 1320, names one of the companions of Wat Tyler, Judde. In Rymer's "Foedera," John Judd appears in 1529 and 1533, and he seems to have been in office under Henry VIII.

Sir Andrew Judd was a "skinner" in London, that is, a dealer in skins and furs. He was a son of John Judd of Tunbridge in Kent. He was a Knight, and became Mayor of London in 1550. He was wealthy, and endowed a Grammar School at Tunbridge, which was called "Judd's Grammar School." His only child was Alice Judd, who married Thomas Smith of Kent. His name is spelled variously, Jud, Jude, Judd and Judde.

In the proceedings in Chancery in the reign of Elizabeth, before 1600, John Judd son of Richard Judd, Nicholas Judd, and William Judd were concerned in cases relating to lands.

The name continues in England. In the London Directory for 1849, which is in the Astor Library in New York, are the names of 24 Judds, 1 Jud and 1 Jude. Of these, 18 Judds, 1 Jud and 1 Jude are in the Commercial Directory; they are Merchants and Mechanics. In that part called the Court Directory, are 6 Judds with Esq. affixed to their names. Three are named William, one William C., one William Henry, and one Samuel. These six seem to be men of fortune and figure, who are denominated gentlemen.

The name is found in other parts of England and sometimes appears among the officers of the army and navy.

It is not known from what part of England our ancestor, Thomas Judd, came. The name Judd has long existed in Essex, a county from which came many of the early settlers of Cambridge and Hartford.

JUDD COATS OF ARMS.—Two are described in Burke's "General Armory of England, Scotland and Ireland," (London, 1842,) in heraldic language, which few understand.

JUDD. (London and Tunbridge. County Kent, Lord mayor of London, 1550.) Gules a fesse raguly between three boars heads coupéd argent. [This is Sir Andrew Judd's Coat of arms.]

JUDD. (Middlesex.) Gules a fesse raguly between three boars heads erased argent—Crest—on a ducal coronet or, a cockatrice's wings displayed proper.

Burke gives also three Jude coats of arms. One of these has three boars' heads. Perhaps some of the Judds, centuries ago, were hunters of the wild boar.

There is no evidence whatever, that our Thomas Judd or his ancestors, ever bore a coat of arms.

A Judd coat of arms can be obtained for a few dollars in Boston or New York, but it will be useless.

REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

The compiler of this Genealogy now submits it to those for whom it was intended, and hopes it will be acceptable to them. Though he has not been sparing of time and pains in forming this little book, yet he is sensible that it is not free from imperfections and errors. Had it been enlarged, it might have been made more complete, but the sale of genealogical books is not sufficient to pay the expense of paper and printing, to say nothing of the labor of collecting and arranging, and the pecuniary loss that must be sustained on this small publication, is quite as much as the compiler can well bear.

It is impossible to avoid all errors where there are so many names, dates and other facts to be recorded. Informants and correspondents make mistakes, especially when having no records to guide them, they rely on memory for their names and dates. The compiler also commits errors, and he is sometimes puzzled with badly written and carelessly written letters, which occasion some errors. Accounts from different sources often differ widely concerning the same fact and date.

For the history of the early generations of Judds in this country, the author is not much indebted to others. He searched many records and relied upon his own researches and investigations, and gave but little attention to the vague traditions which he found in various families.

Later information has been obtained, not only from records, but from many correspondents and informants, most of whom are named in the work. Their communications were in general concerning their near relatives. A few have given more extensive aid, especially John F. Judd of Hartford, Milton Judd of Monterey, Mass., Marvin Judd of Jefferson, N. Y., Rev. I. P. Warren of Plymouth, Conn., Avery Judd Skilton of Troy, N. Y., Rev. Burtis Judd, now of Oxford, Mass. and Silas Judd of Perryville, N. Y. P. M. Trowbridge of Woodbury, though in feeble health, and not related to the Judds, has communicated many facts and kindly answered all inquiries. Four females, mentioned in the book, have rendered important aid.

Those to whom letters have been sent have generally responded promptly and kindly, and manifested a disposition to aid in the work. A few have not taken the trouble to reply to letters.

The materials for this work obtained from correspondents, were chiefly collected in 1850 and 1851, and the history of very many families is brought down to one of those years. The near relatives of the compiler, some other families in the vicinity, and a few at a distance, concerning whom information has been recently obtained, have been brought down to 1856.

The same christian names are variously spelled in different families. The compiler has commonly followed the orthography sent to him, however erroneous it might seem. He has altered it in a few instances.

Titles have not been lavishly used. The town offices which were held by Judds are seldom noticed. As the author is not giving sketches of character, he uses the language of praise and blame sparingly.

The compiler has followed the plan and arrangement of others, though differing in some respects. As the emigrant ancestor had six sons who left posterity, each one has been placed at the head of a branch, and his descendants numbered separately from those of the other sons.

Lemuel Shattuck's Memorial of the Shattucks, an elaborate work, which contains some improvements, was not seen by the compiler until many pages of this work were printed.

GENERATIONS.—In numbering generations, the emigrant ancestor, Thomas Judd, is considered the first generation, his children the second generation, his grand-children the third generation, and so on. Under every generation except the first and second, are included parents and children, but the number of the generation refers only to the children, who are usually in smaller type.

In the Index, the names of parents and heads of families, are the only names given, though the generation under which they are placed, includes, not them, but their children.

The numbers prefixed to the names of children, and repeated in larger figures, when the sons become parents, are chiefly for the purpose of tracing a line of ancestors backward, and a line of descendants forward, and for reference. Some children and a few adults are not numbered.

The number of the descendants of Thomas Judd, during 223 years, cannot be ascertained. Those numbered in the following pages are :—

|----------------|-----|------------------------------------------------|
| Under William, | 370 | Many may be added for those named and |
| “ Thomas, Jr., | 325 | not numbered; and some hundreds for those |
| “ John, | 144 | who are not in this work, most of whom did not |
| “ Benjamin, | 499 | reside in New England. The posterity of |
| “ Philip, | 273 | Thomas Judd must have exceeded 2600, with- |
| “ Samuel, | 271 | out including the posterity of Judd females. |

Thomas Judd seems to have been the only Judd that came to New England, except Roger Judd of Boston, who is noticed on page 112.

The Judds for a long time were all farmers or artisans, and all land-holders. The mechanics owned and cultivated land. None were very rich and none very poor. The first traders from the Judds were apparently Elnathan Judd of Westbury in Waterbury, who was unfortunate in business, and Jonathan Judd, Jr. of Southampton. Both engaged in trade before the revolution.

The Judds who first received a collegiate education were Jonathan and Reuben, who were graduates of Yale College in 1741, and they were the first Judds who were pastors of churches. Benjamin Judd of Westbury, page 40, seems to have been the first physician, and William Judd of Farmington, page 19, the first lawyer.

For a century after Thomas Judd came to New England, all his descendants were Congregationalists. Many have long been connected with other denominations.

In 1853, Z. Judd was among the Mormons in Utah Territory.

There are some ministers named Judd, whose origin is not known to the compiler. Rev. Orren B. Judd is a distinguished minister among the Baptists in New York. A letter to him was not answered. Elder W. L. Judd has been many years a faithful missionary at Hayti, from the Baptist Free Missionary Society.

LONGEVITY. Many Judds have died above 90 years of age, and a much larger number above 80, but none have lived 100 years. The widow of Elihn Judd, (Lois Dikeman,) page 88, married again, and died a widow at Wilton, Conn., Aug. 23, 1855, aged 102 years and 10 months.

JUDDS IN THE REVOLUTION. They were almost all on the side of their country. A few in Connecticut, connected with the English church, favored the British Government. Sabine, in his History of American Loyalists, names four Judds of Fairfield County, who were members of the Reading Association (of Tories.)

REUBEN JUDD, of Weston, page 87. He was a soldier, and his son says he was a sentinel not far from Major Andre when he was executed. Many Judds were revolutionary soldiers, who are not noticed as such in this pamphlet.

SILAS JUDD of Perryville, is now in his 81st year. A few lines of his poetry follow, relating to this Memorial of the Judds.

From the one source, where Thomas stands at head,
Sprang multitudes, and o'er vast regions spread,
Nine generations in succession came,
To fill the earth, and bear their father's name,
Our author tells us, and his tables show,
Our vast increase, and how we come and go.

THOMAS JUDD.

THOMAS JUDD came from England, in 1633 or 1634, and settled at Cambridge, Massachusetts. His homelot of four acres, was granted in August, 1634. It was in that part of Cambridge called the "West-End," on the north-east side of the highway way to Watertown. He built a house upon this lot. His name is among those who were to receive their proportion of meadow ground, August 20, 1635; and also in the list of those who had a house or houses in Cambridge in February, 1636. He was admitted freeman of the colony, May 25, 1636. He removed to Hartford in 1636, and it is not improbable that he was one of that company of about a hundred men, women and children, who departed from Cambridge on the last day of May, 1636, and traveled through the wilderness to Connecticut river. His houselot at Hartford is thus described in the records:—"one parcel of land on which his dwelling house now standeth, with other out houses, yards and gardens thereon being, containing by estimation two acres, more or less. Abutting on the highway leading from William Gibbens's to the ox-pasture on the east, on James Cole's land on the south, on the highway leading from John Moody's towards Wethersfield on the west, and on Mr. Willys's land on the north." Thomas Judd's houselot was on the south side of the Willys homelot, which is distinguished by the charter-oak, and both lots extended westward to the highway leading to Wethersfield.

Thomas Judd was one of the first proprietors and settlers of Farmington. The year in which he removed from Hartford is not known, but it was apparently about 1644. His homelot was the third lot from the north end of the main street, on both sides of the street, and extended westward to Farmington river. He was a substantial farmer and an influential man. Farmington first sent deputies, viz., Stephen Hart and Thomas Judd, to the General Court in May, 1647. Thomas Judd was subsequently a deputy at the May session, 1648, May, 1649, September, 1650, September, 1651, February, 1657, October, 1658, October, 1659, May and October, 1661, 1662 and 1663, May, 1666, October, 1668, October, 1670, May and October, 1677, May, 1678 and October, 1679.

The wife of Thomas Judd died in Farmington, perhaps about 1678; her death is not recorded. Thomas Mason, of Northampton, died in 1678, leaving a widow, Clemence, with a good estate and no children. On the 2d of December, 1679, Thomas Judd married widow Clemence Mason, and he resided with her in Northampton most of the time during the remainder of his life. Her homestead was on the east side of Pleasant street and the front extended from two or three rods below the great elm down to Hawley street; and she owned about forty acres of meadow land. Thomas Judd was one of the selectmen of Northampton in 1682. His youngest son, Samuel, came to Northampton and lived with his father, and after his decease, took care of his widow Clemence, and she gave to him her estate.

Thomas Judd was a member of the church under the care of Rev. Thomas Hooker and Rev. Samuel Stone both at Cambridge and Hartford, and his connection with the Hartford church continued until a church was gathered at Farmington, Oct. 13, 1652. Some of his children were carried from Farmington to Hartford to be baptized. He was one of the seven pillars of the church of Farmington at its organization and his wife united in November, 1652. The first pastor was Rev. Roger Newton, 1652, and the second, Rev. Samuel Hooker, 1661. Stephen Hart was the first deacon, and Thomas Judd the second. In what year the latter was chosen deacon is uncertain. He is styled deacon in the Connecticut Colony records in 1668 and after; and he bore the same title in Northampton. Deac. Thomas Judd died November 12, 1688. His death is not in the Northampton record, but it was registered by the County Clerk at Springfield. His age must have been about 80, perhaps above 80. His second wife, Clemence, died Nov. 22, 1696. He was probably married before he came from England. Neither the family name nor christian name of his first wife has been found. He settled his estate by deeds and not by will. Several of his deeds to his children are dated in 1683, '84 and '85.

Deac. Thomas Judd was one of the 84 proprietors of Farmington, among whom the lands of that extensive township, now embracing five or six townships, were to be divided, according to an agreement made Jan. 8, 1673. Many divisions were made after his decease, and administrators on his estate were appointed once or twice after 1708. Large tracts of his lands were distributed to his children and grand children at several times between 1708 and 1730. Five of his sons were also among the 84 proprietors. Samuel was not of age in 1673 and not a proprietor. In March, 1662, the General Court granted to Thomas Judd, probably for some public services, 200 acres of land, which were located, and called Judd's Farm, but some years after, the land was found to be within the bounds of Wallingford, and was given up, and an equivalent taken elsewhere.

CHILDREN OF THOMAS JUDD, OR THE SECOND GENERATION.

He had nine children, viz., six sons and three daughters. No record of their births can now be found, but from records at Hartford and Farmington, the order of the births is ascertained, excepting the two oldest, and some knowledge is obtained in regard to the years in which they were born, though not so exact as is desirable. When Thomas Judd died, he had a large number of grand children, each of his sons and daughters having had children.

Thomas Judd's Daughters.

Elizabeth Judd married Samuel Loomis of Farmington, Dec. 27, 1653. They removed to Windsor in 1660, and to Westfield about 1674. Their children born in Farmington were Samuel, Elizabeth; in Windsor, Ruth, 1660, Sarah, 1662, Joanna, 1665, Benjamin, 1667, Nehemiah, 1670, William, 1672; in Westfield, Philip, 1675, Mary, 1678. Ten in all. Samuel Loomis died in 1689. His widow, Elizabeth, was living in Westfield, 1716.

Mary Judd married Thomas Loomis of Windsor, January 1, 1663. She was his second wife. Their children were Elizabeth, born 1664, Ruth, 1665, Sarah, 1668, Jeremiah, 1670, died 1672, Mabel, 1672, Mindwell, 1676, Benjamin, 1679. Mary, the mother, died Aug. 8, 1684.

Ruth Judd married the third John Steele of Farmington. Children were Mary, Elizabeth, baptized 1680, Sarah, 1683, John, 1686, Rachel, 1689, Ruth, Ebenezer.

Waterbury, called by the Indians Mattatuck, began to be settled by families from Farmington about 1677. Among the early settlers were Thomas Judd and Philip Judd, sons of Deac. Thomas Judd; and a few years later, Thomas Judd, son of William Judd.

Four of the sons of Thomas Judd, contemplating a removal to Mattatuck, and being members of the church, desired the advice of their brethren in the church. The following counsel was given, and is recorded in the church record of Farmington:—

“The church, having considered the desire of their brethren, William, Thomas, John and Benjamin Judd; as also John Stanley, Jr. touching their removal from us to Mattatuck, agreed as follows:—

1. In general—that considering the divers difficulties and inconveniences that attend the place towards which they are looking, and how hazardable it may be, (for aught that appeareth,) that the house and ordinances of Christ may not (for a large time at least) be settled among them—the church doth advise the brethren to be wary of engaging far, until some comfortable hopes appear of being suited for the inward man in the great things forementioned.

2. Particularly—to our brother William Judd, that it having pleased God to deal so bountifully with him, that not many of the brethren with us have so large accommodations as himself, yet see not his call to remove on the account of straightness for outward subsistence, and therefore counsel him, if it may be with satisfaction to his spirit, to continue his abode with us, hoping God will bless him in so doing.

3. To the rest—though we know not how much they will be bettered as to land, all things considered by their removal, especially John and Benjamin Judd, and therefore cannot much encourage; yet if the bent of their spirits be strong for going, and the advice aforegiven, touching the worship of God be taken, we shall not trouble, but say,—the will of the Lord be done.”

The record is without date. The advice was probably sought and given between 1677 and 1680. William, John and Benjamin did not remove, but lived and died in Farmington. Philip did not ask counsel with the others, for he was not a member of the church till 1681.

Wm. Judd was admitted freeman May, 1656, Thomas, Jr. and John, May, 1664, Benjamin before 1669, and Philip, May, 1677. Samuel was made freeman in Massachusetts, May, 1684.

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM JUDD,

ELDEST SON OF DEACON THOMAS JUDD.

— THIRD GENERATION.

2. WILLIAM JUDD, eldest son of Deac. Thomas Judd, married Mary Steele, daughter of John Steele, of Farmington, March 30, 1658. He died at Farmington, in the latter part of the year 1690. The inventory of his estate was presented to the Court, Nov. 5, 1690. He had in lands and buildings £495 and in personal estate £198, making £693. This was an ample estate for those days, and it appears by the church record, that "not many of the brethren with us have so large accommodations as himself." His age at the time of his decease, was between 54 and 57. He was usually called Sergeant William Judd. His widow, Mary, died Oct. 27, 1718, aged about 80.

Children. The births are not recorded, and only four baptisms, viz., Mary and Elizabeth, July 22, 1660, Thomas, Oct. 13, 1662, William, January 8, 1665. Elizabeth and William died young. The names and ages of the children, as returned with the inventory, Nov. 1690, were:—Mary, aged 32, Thomas, 27, John, 23, Rachel, 20, Samuel, 17, Daniel, 15, Elizabeth, 12. According to this probate record, the years of their birth were nearly as follows:—

- 10 Mary, born 1658. Married Abel Janes of Northampton, Nov. 14, 1679.
Removed to Lebanon, Conn., with several children.
- 11 Thomas, born 1663.
- 12 John, " 1667.
- 13 Rachel, " 1670. Died unmarried 1703. Gave her property to her relatives by will.
- 14 Samuel, born 1673.
- 15 Daniel, " 1675.
- 16 Elizabeth, " 1678. Was living 1718, unmarried.

FOURTH GENERATION.

11. THOMAS JUDD, son of William, settled in Waterbury. He married, Feb. 9, 1688, Sarah Freeman, daughter of Stephen Freeman, one of the first settlers of Milford, and afterwards of Newark, N. J. Thomas and Sarah Judd sold land in Milford, that fell to her from the estate of her father, Stephen Freeman, for £60, Dec. 27, 1688. This Thomas Judd was a Blacksmith, a Farmer, Town Clerk some years, a Deacon of the Church, a Captain of the Militia, a Justice of the Peace, and a Deputy to the General Court, at one or both sessions, more than 20 years between 1696 and 1733. His will, dated April 26, 1738, is recorded in the Probate office at Woodbury.* He had then one son and five daughters. His grave-stone, which is near the northwest corner of the old burying yard, has the following inscription, some of which is almost illegible :—

the body of Thomas Judd, Esq.
the { Justice
first { Deacon &
Captain in Waterbury, who died Jan'y
ye 4th A. D. 1747
aged 79.”

On the foot-stone is “T. J. Esq. 1747.” Near by is a monument with this inscription :—“ Sarah Judd, wife of Deac. Thomas Judd, dyed Sept. 8, 1738, in the 69th year of her age.”

The researches of Professor H. Bronson show that Deac. Thomas Judd was the second Justice in Waterbury and not the first. His uncle, Thomas Judd, was the first.

This age of Thomas Judd, Esq. does not correspond with his age returned to the Probate Court in 1690; and that does not quite agree with the baptismal record. I cannot explain these discrepancies. The figures on the stone designating the age, are indistinct. He must have been 84 or 85 at the time of his decease. The date of his death is correct.—He had a large landed estate.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS JUDD,

SECOND SON OF DEACON THOMAS JUDD.

THIRD GENERATION.

THOMAS JUDD, second son of Deac. Thomas Judd, married Sarah Steele, daughter of John Steele, of Farmington. He was one of the first planters of Mattatuck, or Waterbury; and was the first deputy sent from that town to the General Court, May, 1689. He represented the town, at one or both sessions, for 11 years, between 1689 and 1703. Was several times a deputy with his nephew, Deac. Thomas Judd, when the town sent two. He was an Ensign in 1686, and a Lieutenant and chief officer from 1696 or 97 till his death, there being no Captain till after his decease. He was the first Commissioner for Waterbury, 1690 to 1698, and a Justice of the Peace from 1699 to 1703. His wife died May 22, 1695, aged 57. He died Jan. 18, 1703, aged about 65. The inventory of his estate was £407. He left only three children. They were born in Farmington, but their births are not recorded. He died without making a will, as did his father and all his brothers except Samuel.

Thomas Judd, as a proprietor of Waterbury, was entitled to a large quantity of land in that great township, and was still a proprietor of Farmington. Indeed, land in those days was more plenty than any thing else, but the greater part of the upland was then deemed of little value. A tract in Waterbury was named Judd's Meadow, in the 17th century. Children—

3 Thomas.

4 Sarah, born about 1665. Married Stephen Hopkins, Jr. of Hartford, Nov. 17, 1686, and died May 11, 1693, in her 28th year. She left son Thomas and two daughters.

5 John.

FOURTH GENERATION.

3. THOMAS JUDD, son of Lieut. Thomas Judd, of Waterbury, married Sarah Gaylord, daughter of Joseph Gaylord, senior, April 11, 1688. He was a Deputy to the General Court from Waterbury, five or six times, and his cousin, Deac. Thomas Judd, was a Deputy with him from W. at five sessions. He must have been a school teacher, for he is sometimes called in deeds, Thomas Judd, school-master. He purchased or inherited a large farm in Farmington, next to Hartford line, and he removed from Waterbury to this farm about 1709. He afterwards bought land in Hartford, adjoining his farm, and he built on his Hartford land and lived in West Hartford until his death, Aug. 24, 1724. His home farm and two houses and other buildings, were appraised at £410, and he had other lands, and gave land to each of his daughters. His children were all born in Waterbury, except the youngest. His age was not far from 61.

This Thomas Judd, his brother John Judd, his cousin Deac. Thomas Judd, and William Judd, son of the latter, each held the office of Town Clerk of Waterbury, between 1696 and 1720. The penmanship of one or two of them is awkward. Children—

DESCENDANTS OF BENJAMIN JUDD,
FOURTH SON OF DEAC. THOMAS JUDD.

THIRD GENERATION.

BENJAMIN JUDD, fourth son of Deac. Thomas Judd, lived at Farmington. Married Mary Lewis, daughter of Capt. William Lewis of Farmington. She was born May, 1645. He died in 1689, probably in October, aged 47. The inventory of Benjamin Judd's estate, £267, was presented to the Court, Nov. 6, 1689. His widow died in 1691 or 1692, aged about 46, and the inventory of his and her estate, 292£, was presented April, 1692. Son Benjamin was appointed administrator, March, 1692, with John Judd; and William Lewis was to aid. The ages of the children were returned to the Court with each inventory, and the baptisms of the four youngest are in the church record. The estate was divided among the children, May 20, 1697. His right to uplands was not then of much value.

Benjamin Judd and Philip Judd died about the same time in 1689, in less than a year after the death of their father. Their brother William Judd died the next year, 1690. Sister Mary Loomis died Aug. 8, 1634.—Children of Benjamin—

The inventory of his estate, £329, consisting of property in Waterbury, £237, and land in Farmington, £92, was taken Nov. 2, 1689, and presented to the court at Hartford, Nov. 11. The widow was administratrix, but she seems to have been married again before 1691, to some person whose name does not appear; and Ens. Thomas Judd and Thomas Judd, the smith, were appointed administrators, and to take care of the children, March, 1691. The estate was much in debt and considerable was expended for the children. Deac. Thomas Judd reported Nov. 5, 1703, that the debts had amounted to £139, other expenses and losses to £46, leaving £144 to be divided.

The names and ages of the children are recorded in the Probate Office, 1689, being returned with the inventory; and the baptisms are in the Farmington church record. The baptism of the youngest child was delayed; probably the mother was not a church member when her husband died.

Thomas died young. Hannah married Thomas Hoyt of Danbury and had nine or ten children.

All the children of Philip Judd settled in Danbury before 1720, and the three sons apparently in that part since called Bethel parish or society. The records of Danbury were burnt when that place was destroyed by the British in the revolutionary war, April, 1777; and this loss of records makes it very difficult to trace families in that town. I visited Danbury in 1839, and collected some information relating to the Judds from aged persons and other sources. My principal informant was Deac. Eliel Taylor, then 82 years old.

He may have made some mistakes. I examined hastily the town and probate records since the revolution, and some grave-stones.

The descendants of Philip Judd may be denominated the Danbury and Kent Branch.

FOURTH GENERATION.

3. PHILIP JUDD, first son of Philip Judd of Waterbury, lived in that part of Danbury called Bethel, and died, aged 80 years or more, between 1760 and 1765. He and his second wife Lydia were members of the church in Bethel, in 1760. That church seems to have been organized in 1760. He had three sons, and Deac. E. Taylor thought he had five daughters. Russel Judd, Esq. of Kent, knew of only one daughter, Rebecca. Childrea—

- 8 Philip.
- 9 Thomas.
- 10 Samuel.
- 11 Hannah. Named by Deac. Taylor.
- 12 Rebecca. Named by Russel Judd.

6. WILLIAM JUDD, second son of Philip Judd of Waterbury, married Mary Gridley of Farmington, Dec. 23, 1709. He had two children born in Farmington, viz., Elizabeth, Sept. 19, 1710, and Eunice, Jan. 23, 1713. He removed from Farmington to Waterbury, and in 1716 or 1717, settled in Danbury. He was called William Judd, Tailor. Deac. Eliel Taylor had heard of him as a former resident, but knew not what became of him.

In October, 1735, (as I have it, but the date should perhaps be later,) William Judd of Woodbury, who had lost one eye by a chip that struck it, and having the other eye much impaired, petitioned the General Court to be freed from poll taxes, and the request was granted. He referred to his "declining years." Perhaps this was William Judd, son of Philip.

I found in the Bethel church record, that William and Anna Judd had a son Reuben baptized in 1761. This William Judd seems to have been a son of the first William Judd of Bethel. The latter may have had children besides William and the two daughters born at Farmington. It is possible that Reuben's father was a grand-son of William, son of Philip Judd. 13, 14, 15.

7. BENJAMIN JUDD, third son of Philip Judd of Waterbury, lived at Bethel in Danbury. Deac. E. Taylor remembered him, and said he lived to a great age. He thought he died after 1774, aged nearly 90. He had a wife Sarah, after whose death, he married a second wife. He and his wife Sarah, and daughter Sarah, were members of Bethel church, 1760. Deac. Taylor was confident he had only three children, viz.—

- 16 Benjamin.
- 17 Phinehas.
- 18 Sarah. Lived to old age, unmarried.

FIFTH GENERATION.

- 32 Rebecca. Her first husband was Moses Knapp of New Fairfield, by whom she had 7 children. Her second husband was Matthew Judd of Kent, her cousin. Her third husband was Comfort Judd of Kent, her cousin, who had been husband of her sister Elizabeth.
- 33 Thomas.
- 34 Abner, born July 14, 1758.

15. WILLIAM JUDD, supposed to be son of William Judd, No. 6, is said by his descendants to have lived and brought up his family in the district of Plum Trees, in the parish of Bethel; and to have emigrated to Nova Scotia in 1783, and to have removed thence to Upper Canada, about 1784. He settled about 25 miles from York, where he lived many years. Time of his death not known. His son Reuben soon returned to Connecticut and settled in Weston. He is believed to be the Reuben Judd baptized at Bethel in 1761, (see No. 6,) but if so, there is a slight error in the date of birth or baptism. Children—

- 41 Reuben, born Jan. 5, 1762.
- 42 Jerusha.
- 43 Lydia.
- 44 Sarah.

16. BENJAMIN JUDD, son of Benjamin Judd of Danbury, lived in Bethel Society. Married Susannah Knapp. He was of Bethel church, 1760. He had one son and three daughters. He is said to have removed to Winchester and to have died there about 1796. Children—

DESCENDANTS OF SAMUEL JUDD,

SIXTH SON OF DEACON THOMAS JUDD.

THIRD GENERATION.

2. SAMUEL JUDD, youngest son of Deac. Thomas Judd, came to Northampton and married Mariah Strong, daughter of Thomas Strong and Mary (Hewet,) about 1681. He seems to have lived in the house with his father, and after his decease, took care of his widow, and she gave to him her property, which had been the estate of Thomas Mason. He died Jan. 10, 1721, and his age was 67, according to his grave stone, thus placing his birth in 1653, which is probably correct. The Farmington church record makes him 6 years old in 1657, which appears to be erroneous, for he was not of age, Jan. 8, 1673, and so was not a proprietor of Farmington, when all his brothers were proprietors. His widow died May 18, 1751, aged 87 years and 8 or 9 months. Her name is usually spelled Mariah or Moriah in the records. She belonged to a family of 16 children.

Samuel Judd lived on the Mason Homestead in Pleasant street, Northampton. Besides the Mason estate, he had land in Farmington given by his father, and he had his share in the divisions of his father's lands, made after his death. His father had engaged for him an 80 £ allotment in Waterbury; as he did not settle there, it was forfeited. There was a time when all the six brothers intended to settle at Waterbury.

Samuel Judd's descendants may be called the Northampton and South Hadley Branch. As Samuel was the youngest son, the generations of his descendants are 20, 30, or more years later than the corresponding numerical generations of the posterity of the oldest son, William. Children—

APPENDIX.—ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

DEAC. THOMAS JUDD and five sons, who were proprietors of Farmington, (page 10) received their shares in the divisions of lands made after 1672, in proportion to their estates in the list taken for taxation about 1672, which were as follows, including 8 or 10£ added to the smaller estates:—

| | | | |
|------------------|------------|----------------|------|
| Thomas Judd, sr. | £30, 10 s. | John Judd, | £69. |
| William Judd, | 140. | Benjamin Judd, | 63. |
| Thomas Judd, Jr. | 99. | Philip, | 33. |

The estates of the 84 proprietors in the same list, with the additions, amounted to £7107 and averaged as much as those of the Judds. The older sons of Deac. Thomas Judd had been longer acquiring property than the younger ones. Philip was only two or three years above 21. Samuel was a minor, and not in the valuation of estates, and not a proprietor.

In some of the divisions of land in Waterbury, there were only 36 proprietors, and four of these were Judds, viz., Philip, deceased; Thomas and John, sons of Lieut. Thomas; and Thomas, son of William. They had about one ninth of the land divided.

In those days, when land was so plenty, men often gave land to their daughters, when they had sons. Deac. Thomas Judd of Waterbury, son of William, gave to his daughter Mary Hopkins, 180 acres of land, Aug. 9, 1832; and he gave land to his other daughters.

REV. JONATHAN JUDD of Southampton, page 17. The house which he built in 1743, is still standing and appears to be a sound, commodious building. It was surrounded with a palisade or fortification in two French and Indian wars, to protect the family and other inhabitants who collected there, against the Indians. The 60 years, during which Mr. Judd was a faithful pastor at Southampton, included many years of danger and difficulty.

I have one of his sermons printed at Boston, which was "Preached in Southampton on the Sabbath, P. M. May 28, 1758, to a number of soldiers, just before their march against the enemy," from Joshua v. 14.—His sermons burnt may have amounted to 3000.

The four sons of Rev. Jonathan Judd were all above 6 feet in height; also several of his grand-sons. One of the latter exceeds 6 feet and 4 inches; some are below 6 feet. I know but little about the stature of other Judds.

The deaths of the sons in law of Rev. Jonathan Judd were as follows:—Samuel Edwards died Aug. 12, 1842, aged 89. Timothy Clark died Nov. 22, 1823, aged 70. Luther Edwards died May 10, 1834, aged 78.

WILLIAM JUDD, Esq. of Farmington, page 19. He graduated at Yale College, 1763, and was early sent by Farmington to the legislature, and continued to be a representative many years. Was a popular man, and much employed in public matters.

In the revolutionary war, a Capt. William Judd resided some time at Wyoming, now in Pennsylvania, where the Connecticut settlers suffered so much from the Indians and whites. He was one of the Justices for Westmoreland, which comprehended the Wyoming country, in 1780. It is probable that William Judd, Esq. of Farmington, was at Wyoming in 1780.

A man named William Judd was imprisoned at Philadelphia, and released in 1776.

MARVIN JUDD, Esq. of Jefferson, N. Y., page 27. He married his second wife, Sarah M. Hinman, aged 33 years, May 27, 1847, when he was 72 years old, and has had three children, viz.—

SILAS JUDD, Esq. of Perryville, Madison Co., N. Y. I find that he has composed several small works besides those noticed on page 49. In 1832, he published a Poem on Religious Subjects, in Five Cantos, 47 pages. It was composed in six days without interrupting his work on the farm. In 1838, he published "A Sketch of the Life and Voyages of Capt. Alvah Dewey," 113 pages. In 1843, he published in the Madison Observer, in four columns, "Whig and Tory, or the Abduction of Chauncey Judd, 1778," in which he gives the details of that event. See Chauncey Judd, page 45. He has written against the use of Tobacco, and on various other subjects.

GIDEON JUDD, son of Amos, page 55, was born July 29, 1740, and had six sons—Dan, Amos, Gideon, Matthew, Benjamin and another; and five daughters—Keziah, Sarah, Lucy, Polly and Lydia.

MATTHEW JUDD, son of Gideon, page 55, was born June, 1763, and married Philane Peck, Jan. 20, 1800. He and his wife are both living at Kensington, Conn., June, 1856, he aged 83 and she 84 years. Children—

 William, born July, 1807. Married Lydia Kellogg and had two children,—Hezekiah, born Oct. 14, 1831, and died Aug. 23, 1855; Mary, born June 17, 1833. William, the father, died Feb. 14, 1840.

[Letter from Matthew Judd, 1856.]

HEZEKIAH JUDD, brother of Gideon, page 57, had three children born, though only one is named in the will, viz., Mary, born Feb. 15, 1778, who married Elijah Hooker, Jr.

NOTE. When the names of children are taken from the will of the parent, or other record in the Probate office, and from no other source, the names of those who died young, and of older ones who died childless before the death of the parent, are not obtained.

[This Stephen Judd made out the account of the families of his father and grand-father, in 1851.]

DAVID JUDD of Northampton was a Judson. He came to Northampton when a boy and resided here through life. He married Sally Cook, who died Oct. 10, 1826, aged 52; and he died May 21, 1827, aged 56. His father was a Judson from Stratford, Conn. David shortened his name when he came to Northampton, and he and his sons, and his daughters till marriage, had the surname of Judd. He was a cabinet-maker and a worthy man. He left the following children:—Melissa, born 1799, Spencer, born 1800, Sally Maria, born 1802, Pamela, born 1803, Harriet Sophia, born 1807, David Cook, born 1809.

ROGER JUDD of Boston, was not a descendant of Thomas Judd. It appears from his deposition in 1708, that he knew about some things in Boston, "ever since 1660," and he refers to his mother in Boston. He was admitted a free-man in 1690. He had a wife Elizabeth, and his children recorded in Boston were, Elizabeth, born March 3, 1678, David, born March 3, 1680 and died young, and David, born June 17, 1682. His wife or widow Elizabeth died Sept. 6, 1720, aged 69. The name became extinct in Boston.

OMISSIONS OF MIDDLE NAMES.—Hannah and Sarah, daughters of Peninnah (Judd) Edwards, No. 174, page 24, should be Hannah Burt and Sarah Ann; and Hannah's husband should be Benjamin B. Hoxie.

I omitted these middle names in a family of relatives, because I trusted to memory without looking at the record. My correspondents have sometimes omitted the first or second part of double christian names.

HOPHNI JUDD, No. 178, page 25, graduated at Williams College in 1812—not in 1811.

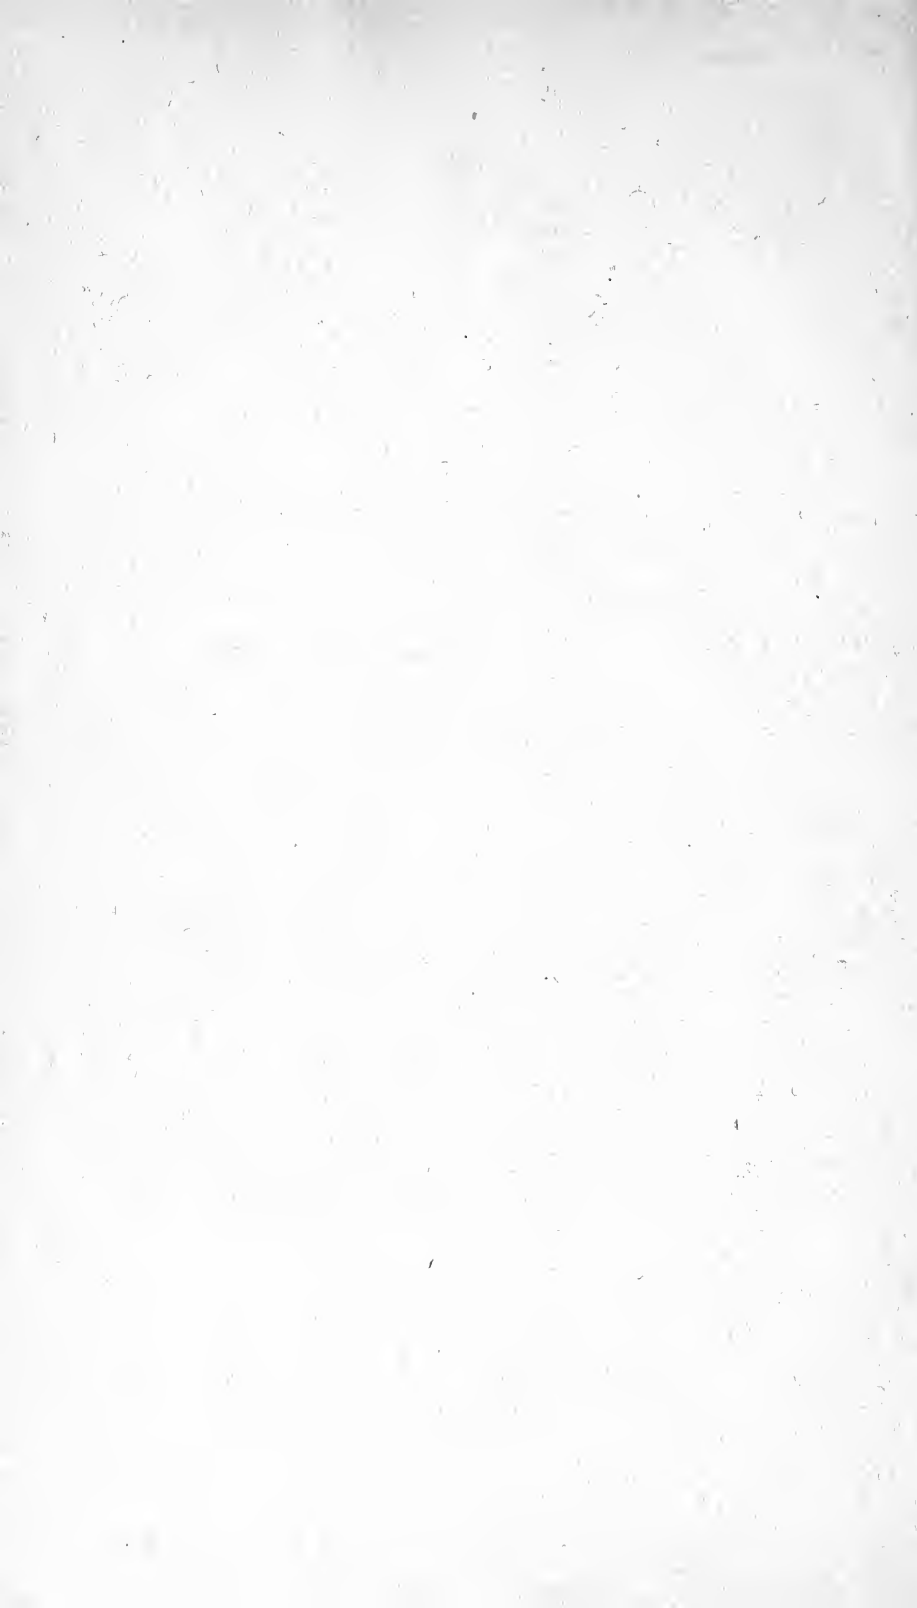

H. T. HOOKER, husband of Sarah Judd, No. 177, page 25, died at West-hampton, April 20, 1856, in his 67th year.

DANIEL JUDD, son of Matthew, page 20, lived at Woodbury, and died there, Jan. 2, 1824. [From P. M. Trowbridge, Esq. of W.]

SUSAN (JUDD) BENNETT, No. 130, page 21, had 3 sons and 3 daughters,—not 4 sons and 1 daughter.

PHINEHAS JUDD of Bethel, page 91, is still living, at the age of 83.
